| DESCRIPTION | As second largest city in Indonesia, Surabaya has developed uniquely in terms of physical and social character in housing human settlements. Compared with others city in Indonesia, Surabaya has long stories and strong character as port and services city. The social character of Surabaya peoples has shaped the development of the city its self as part of positive and strength of resources for the city. The city government as a generator on development, has gave widely opportunities for all the community to participate in the city development. So many development was initiated with the community participation engagement as well as campus (intellectual community) and private sector participation. One of the strong uniqueness of Surabaya is how the city government has maintain the existence of the kampong in the city center as part of urban resources to make the city works. The peoples who lives in the kampong has massive positive contribution for the development of the city, when their shelter has in good and adequate condition. |
